WESTERN KANSAS

Dixon is Now Out Talking About
This Great Country

Syl Dixon who will run the advertising train from Western Kansas has arranged a prize for the best decorated car at the State fair at Hutchinson. Mr. Dixon is beginning to spread the news of the advertising trip. A few days ago he was in Topeka and the following appeared in the Topeka Journal.

"I have pushed the Panhandle, Oklahoma and New Mexico until the lands down there are selling for five, ten or twenty dollars per acre more than they were a few years ago, and now I am going to start a similar campaign for western Kansas. Western Kansas land is not only richer and deeper, but crops can be raised without irrigation. Irrigation is the greatest drawback to any farming country. I am going to start the tide of immigration to western Kansas."

Thus spoke the great Syl Dixon famed from the equator to the aurora borealis as the propagator, instigator and originator of agricultural advertising trains.

Mr. Dixon is in Topeka today to talk over his plan with Governor Hoch, and secure from the governor a letter endorsing his project.

"I will go from here to Chicago," said Mr. Dixon, "to make arrangements for the train, which will start from Dodge City about September 18. Twenty western Kansas counties will have exhibits of their agricultural products on this train, and each county will have its own representative aboard to explain the exhibits. The train will travel east from Kansas in daylight, stopping at every town, and giving the people a chance to see what western Kansas is doing. It will double the population of western Kansas. The itinerary of the train will be published widely, and everybody on the line between Kansas and Chicago will have a chance to see it. The train will exhibit at the Hutchinson fair, and at the state fairs of Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. The Hutchinson fair will offer a prize of $100 for the best decorated car, $50 for the second best and $25 for the third best.

"Our agents are now at work in each county, gathering an exhibit of the products of the counties to be represented. We can make a display of farming, never before equalled. It will surpass anything shown by irrigated communities.

"I have just returned from a trip in western Kansas, and I never saw crops looking so fine. Way down here in Seaward county, and all along that line, they have had so much rain that the water is standing in the fields, and corn is making an amazing growth."

Mr. Dixon confessed that he still makes his home at Woodward, Oklahoma, but he added:

"My headquarters for the present are Dodge City. I'm working for western Kansas now."

TO PROVE ROBBERY

GOVERNOR LEEDY'S OPINION OF
THE GREAT PRIVILEGES

Offered People of Kansas by the Harris Railroad Bill.

TO EJECT SETTLERS.

MR. HARRIS RESPONSIBLE FOR UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD'S EFFORT.

To Deprive Settlers of Lands Purchased From Company.

Topeka, July 18—Slight investigation of the history of the legislative session of 1897 plainly discloses the reasons for Populist dislike and distrust of W. A. Harris, of Chicago, the man the Democrats want to make Governor of Kansas. In 1897 Harris lived in Kansas. It was at the legislative session of 1897 that he was elected United States Senator and severed his connection with the state. In 1899 Harris was elected a member of the state senate. The fusion campaign was fought on a railroad issue and the Populists had promised radical rate regulation.

W. A. Harris, who was a candidate for United States Senator, and who indicated that he was favorable to railroad regulation, was made chairman of the committee on railroads. Later he was elected United States Senator and in March resigned from the state senate. After his promotion he displayed his real feelings toward the railroads.

Several railroad bills embodying Populist ideals were introduced. Not one of them could get past the senate railroad committee, headed by Harris. Harris presented a bill which was known as the "Harris Bill." That bill it has since been learned, was prepared by Judge Elijah Robinson, of Kansas City, a Missouri Pacific railroad attorney.

Harris, W. H. Ryan, and Hugh Farrelly, Populist whips in the senate, finally forced the bill through both houses of the legislature, when the honest Populists had despaired of securing any sort of railroad legislation. Thirty-nine Populist representatives who voted for the bill denounced it in unmeasured terms as a corporation measure only slightly better than no law at all.

But Governor Leedy, who had promised the people some sort of railroad legislation, was not to be fooled. He pronounced the "Harris Bill" worse than no law at all and vetoed it. His veto message will long be remembered by the Harris-Ryan-Farrelly crowd as one of the strongest rebukes ever administered to a set of disloyal political adventurers. The following extracts from Governor Leedy's message vetoing the Harris bill afford some idea of the reasons he found for branding it as framed in the interests of the railroad:

"Offering the shipper no defensible advantage that is not his under the present legislation and securing to him no means of redress that is not his already by virtue of the ancient principles of the common law, this bill actually circumscribes the rights that he would have under the common law in that it induces him to a struggle before the railroad commission, which only lands him in the district court in no better position than that of his contemporary who begins his action there without reference to this statute, but who has not lost the time consumed before the commission.

"This commission is so utterly impotent that the provisions in this bill against discrimination, supported as they are by no penalty that is sure of enforcement, offer the shipper no advantage over present legislation that he can hope to maintain against the legal technicalities of which corporations would avail themselves. The only means of redress that this bill secures him is an opportunity to go before court or commission and prove that he has been robbed. This right, the common law which he inherited from his fathers and which is still the law of Kansas except when a statute steps in, amply secures to him. If he goes into court and begins an action under his old common law right, he saves the time which another complainant spends before this commission only to find himself by appeal of the corporation in the district court a few months behind his common-law brother, and with no start there which the other man has not enjoyed.

Excursion to Cripple Creek.

Sunday, July 22nd, an opportunity to view the most marvellous mountain scenery of Colorado and to visit the greatest Gold camp on earth. The Santa Fe will run an excursion train from Dodge City to Cripple Creek leaving Dodge City July 21 at 9:10 p. m. The fare for the round trip will be $6.25. Returning leave Cripple Creek at 2:40 p. m. and Colorado Springs at 5 p. m. July 22nd. 40 minutes for breakfast at Colorado

The governor stated he was impelled to make the suggestion by search of his pledges to the people. An effort was made to pass the bill over the veto, and Horace A. Keeler, now Populist candidate for governor, voted against the bill because he believed it was a corporation measure. Two years later Leedy and the Populists went down because of broken promises. In the closing days of his term Governor Leedy called a special session to secure the promised legislation. His hopes were vain. The court of visitation bill was passed through the instrumentality of Balle Waggoner, Ryan and Farrelly. It was unconstitutional and relented from exorbitant rates was again postponed, and the fate of the populist party in Kansas was sealed. Harris, Ryan, Farrelly and Balle Waggoner are now members of the Democratic party in Kansas.

SAVES PEOPLE'S MONEY

Republican Law Reformer, who is saving $50,000,000 for the people.

Topeka, July 18—The recent report of T. A. McNeal, state printer, of the operation of the state printing plant for the first twelve months under state ownership shows that the total expense of operating the plant for the entire year was $42,947.81. Under the old system the same amount of printing would have cost the state $63,741.81. The state has therefore saved $20,794.23 as a direct result of this Republican act.

HARRIS AND UNION PACIFIC

Democratic Reformer From Chicago Causes Trouble for Kansas.

Topeka, July 18—When W. A. Harris was land commissioner in charge of the sale of Kansas Pacific railroad lands to the settlers in Kansas, precaution on his part, would have saved citizens of this state thousands of dollars in money and the annoyance and uncertainty connected with law suits brought by the Union Pacific now in the federal court, to eject the settlers from lands they have occupied for years.

In other words had Mr. Harris availed himself of the protection of the courts which Governor Hoch has done in the Katy case these ejectment suits would not have been brought. Governor Hoch's action will permit the settlement of all controversies concerning titles before actual settlers spend their lives improving the lands and take the chance thereafter in being dispossessed, as is the case in the Union Pacific cases now under advisement by Judge Pollock.

TOM KELLY WON.

Shawnee District Court Found no Discrepancies.

Topeka, July 18—In his written opinion in the case of T. T. Kelly, state treasurer, Judge Dana states that in no case was Kelly short in his accounts as treasurer. The report by expert accountants charged Kelly with $11,000 under the head of "differences, discrepancies and irregularities," and Governor Hoch requested the attorney general to sue him. The decision of Judge Dana clears Treasurer Kelly of all charges and ends the case.

SLURS POPULISTS

Democratic Organ Abuses Recent State Convention.

Topeka, July 18—In a recent editorial the Kansas City Star (Dem.) said that the Populists who recently met in convention in Topeka were sore-eyed, chewed tobacco, spitting in public places, and allowed dandruff to accumulate on the collars of their coats. Of course, if the Populists had endorsed the state Democratic ticket they would not have looked so many and common to the Star as they do now.

James N. Pike, formerly Democrat's member of the state board of railroad commissioners, has given it as his opinion that this is a bad year in which to start political revolutions.
